As a fitting climax to the most suc cessful season Tempe high school's baseball team ever put in, the players were banqueted by First Baseman John Moeur and Manager Sidney B. The occasion was one long to be remembered, it marked the last social event of the school year, it brought together the players for the last time and last of what might be termed a series of ceptions in their honor, and it marked the close of a season wherein the team won ten out of eleven games played.

There was a reason for making merry.
